The Congestion from a Bad Cold Cured Coughs Loosened Up in One Hour

Nerviline Rubbed On At Night -- You're Well
Next Morning.

Nerviline Never Fails

When that cold comes, how, is it to be cured? This method is simplicity itself: rub the chest and throat vigorously with "Nerviline," rub it in good and deep; lots of rubbing can't do any harm. Then put some Nerviline in the water and use it as a gargle; this will ease the cough, cut out the phlegm, assist in breaking up the cold quickly. There is no telling how quickly Nerviline breaks up a hard racking cough, cures a tight chest, relieves a pleuritic pain. Why there isn't any innocent with half the power, the penetrative qualities, the honest merit that has made Nerviline the most popular American household liniment.

A large 50 cent bottle of Nerviline cures ill of the whole family, and makes the doctor's bill small. Get it today. The large size is more economical than the small 25 cent size. Sold by dealers everywhere, or direct from The Catarhazone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Giant Enemy Biplanes a Myth

Some Big Ones Built for Water, But None Have Yet Been Met

Giant German biplanes, it is officially announced by the French War Department, are a myth. They have never been met with on the battle front. The statement adds:

"It is certain, however, that Germany has built biplanes of an exceptional size and able to carry its passengers. Another, 42 metres (137 feet) across, with three motors of 200 horse-power each, is said to have been constructed at Friedrichshaven and to have flown over Lake Constance. If so, these experiments must have had bad results, for the machine nowhere has been met."

"Aircraft of great power on service on the land front are the two motored aeroplanes. One is the Aviatik type, 24 metres (78 feet) across. It is steered by three rudders. It has places for an observer or a gunner and a machine gun behind the pilot, and for another gun firer on the balcony before the pilot. The other type is of a similar model but more rapid in flight. The theorists in these aeroplanes are of 220 horse-power."

Soldiers' View of War.
Romania Roll publishes two letters from a French schoolmaster, now sergeant at the front, to one of them: "All I have seen and heard since I have been here convinces me that war is not a heated enough, and also that those engaged in warfare hate it from the bottom of their hearts, as that is not cordially detested. The 'Poilu' (the soldier) has nothing warlike about him; his greatest wish is to return home from the war and never to have anything again to do with it. I assure you that the soldiers of today are the most confirmed pacifists of the future. These people will continue to do their duty, as that is necessary for peace, a victorious peace, that thought is always uppermost in their minds."—Semaine Littéraire (quoted in Vossische Zeitung).

Varieties of Grain

Farmers Should Know the Names of Seeds They Sow

Twenty per cent. of the 400 farmers visited in the Agricultural Survey in Ontario in 1915 did not know the name of any variety of grain sown on their farms. In Dundas county, where 100 farms were visited, of a total of 86 farmers growing barley only 11 knew the variety grown. Fifty-two per cent. of the 400 farmers visited in the province were growing barley and only 18 per cent. knew the name of the variety.

Only 64 per cent. of all the farmers visited knew the name of the variety of oats they were sowing. Those who do not know the variety sown may be sowing grain unsuited for their farms. There is very little excuse for the prevalence of such conditions. Every farmer sowing an unknown grain lives within reach of some farmer who grows a known sort of proven excellence, from whom seed can be obtained. Farmers wishing to obtain seed for next year should arrange to visit a neighbor and choose a variety which has been tested and proved to be good. The Central Experiment Station at Ottawa and the various Agricultural Colleges have carried on such tests for the benefit of farmers, results of which may be obtained free upon application.—F.C.N.

Women and Asthma.—Women are numbered among the sufferers from asthma. In the case of women, however, in every climate they will be found, helpless in the grip of this relentless and insubstantial disease. It is called themselves of the proper remedy. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has been tried by thousands of women, and without solicitation, show the enormous benefit wrought among women everywhere.

Married King Harold's Daughter.
Vladimir Volynski, in the neighborhood of which hard fighting is going on, has been visiting in Vienna telegrams, is compounded of two Russian names, yet only came to the notice of the world through the partition of Poland in 1931. Volynski was a name of a trusted minister of the late Emperor. His execution after his master's death was brought about by Biren, the German emperor's chief adviser. With the name of Vladimir are many associations cherished by Russians, but the most interesting to us recalls the married Gyllha, the daughter of our English King Harold, who was allied between this country and our new and great ally—London Chronicle.

SUMMER COMPLAINTS KILL LITTLE ONES

At the first sign of illness during the hot weather give the little ones Dr. Williams' Own Tablets, and in a few hours he may be beyond cure. These Tablets will prevent summer complaints if given occasionally to the well child and will promptly cure these troubles if they come on suddenly. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in every home where there are young children. There is no other medicine so fast and so sure as Baby's Own Tablets. The mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that they are absolutely safe. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Korean Customs.

When you first enter Korea, it just seems like a mysterious dream. Their ways are queer and just backward to ours, and when they ask you something they will ask, "Where are you going?" or "What are you going to do?" And they are very polite.

The Korean people talk in a coarse, loud voice. At first when you hear them it sounds as though they are quarrelling, but they are only having a friendly chat. They also have three kinds of tones—high, low and middle. To the old people and people above fifteen years of age the high tone; to the children and servant, they talk in the low tone, and to the young people, they talk in the middle tone. They eat on tables about one foot and a half long and a foot high, and the women wait on the men at each meal, for they are not allowed to eat with the men. The men are really servants. They call the men their lords and masters, and the men respect all the lords and masters, for the father gets a wife for his son, and the son rarely ever sees his wife before the wedding day.—Birmingham News.

WOMEN'S RIGHTS.
The women of the world are now beginning to realize the deplorable situation in which it has been placed by men who should have been the world's benefactors, and who will now find it impossible to conceal unpleasant facts.—New York Sun.

Game as a National Asset

Game Preserves Necessary to Preserve the Game

Judging from the rate at which the wild creatures of North America are now being destroyed, fifty years hence there will be no large game left in the United States nor in Canada, outside of rigidly protected game preserves. It is therefore the duty of every good citizen to promote the protection of forests and wild life and the creation of game preserves, while a supply of game remains. Every man who finds pleasure in hunting or fishing should be willing to spend both time and money in active work for the protection of forests, fish and game.

In the settled and civilized regions of North America there is no real necessity for the conservation of wild game as human food; nor is there any good excuse for the sale of game for food purposes. The operations of market hunters should be prohibited everywhere, under severe penalties.

The highest purpose which the killing of wild game and game fishes can serve is the education of the public in the value of game as a national asset. The highest purpose which the killing of wild game and game fishes can serve is the education of the public in the value of game as a national asset.

Popular Spirit in England.
Some of the most ardent patriots, others achieve patriotism, and still others—Yes, the paraphrase holds good for the same reason. Only those who have had patriotism thrust on them constitute a very small minority of the British public.

Conscription is no criticism. There were less than a million eligibles left when the conscription bill was passed. These would have volunteered if the reasons why their services were required were made plain. The majority of these would have volunteered if the reasons why their services were required were made plain. The majority of these would have volunteered if the reasons why their services were required were made plain.

"Air" Losses.

Reliable information shows that the German air losses in one month were as great as the British losses in the British lines, 7 certainly brought down in the German lines, and 11 probably brought down in the German lines, making a total of 10 certain and 11 probable German losses. For the same reason, the German losses on the French front were 10 brought down and 7 seriously damaged.

If Miller's Worm Powders needed the support of testimonials they could get it by the thousands from mothers who know the great virtue of this excellent medicine. Be the power of the medicine for themselves and in such a way that there can be no question of them. They are speedily and thoroughly, and the child to whom they are administered will show improvement from the first dose.

Reaping the Harvest of Lies

A recent appeal made to the German people by the German government staff not to accept the claims of the Allies to victory on the western front, claims that the "fantastic hymns of victory that mock their reality" include the "backstabbing traitors" to indulge in a reminiscent mood. Since July, 1914, the German people have been really victims of self-deception and gullibility at times of efforts to deceive the people. The people are really victims of the struggle certain events rapidly succeeding each other filled the mind of the German people. The German Government is now reaping the harvest that is inseparable from the misrepresentation and misconceptions sowed. No official proclamations can prevent a nation from being misled by a fraudulent price for its unjustified reliance upon the good judgment and good faith of its leaders. The German people are realizing the deplorable situation in which it has been placed by men who should have been the world's benefactors, and who will now find it impossible to conceal unpleasant facts.—New York Sun.

The Future of the Teuton

The fate of the Hohenzollern dynasty is of less importance than the fate of the German people. Individuals may rise or fall, but a great nation should not perish because of the selfishness and recklessness of a ruler or of an oligarchy.

While there are fatal defects in the German system of education, these are elements in which command universal admiration. German efficiency and the scientific illustration of it, happily it has been misplaced, but, when Prussian militarism has been destroyed, the ability of education to their peculiar aptitudes in other countries, as well as in their own. When Greece fell, it was the great nation that they had educated the rich and powerful Romans. Germany is not a land of artists but a land of what in the jargon of today we call "scientists." Every progressive country would welcome the able German, who seeks to make a livelihood or fortune by his practical knowledge of science.

Those English Geographers

The London Star says of the review of Canadian troops in England: "Altogether there were nearly 20,000 of them, the pick of the manhood of Canada from the towns and prairies of British Columbia and Vancouver." Which moves Punch to remark that, in its anxiety for geographical accuracy, the London Star might have added that the review was held somewhere between London and England.

"Yes, he was. Great guns!"
"He'd shake my hand off."

WEDDING.

KNIGHT-SMART.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. James Smart was the scene of a quiet wedding on Tuesday, September 26th, at 12.30 o'clock, when their third daughter, Agnes Olive, became the bride of Joseph Knight, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Knight, of Bruce Mines, Ontario. The Rev. M. A. Wiggins, of Airdrie officiating.

The bride, who was unattended, looked most attractive in travelling costume of rich raisin brown with hat en suite, and corsage bouquet of bride's roses and fern.

The young couple left on the 2.30 train for Calgary en route to Lethbridge where they will make their home.

The Indestructible Union of the Flemish and the Walloons of Belgium

At the great patriotic demonstration which, on the occasion of the Belgian National Anniversary, had gathered in the Albert Hall, London, thousands of Belgians and Britishers, Mr. Standaert, deputy of the Flemish district of Bruges, made in Flemish a most eloquent speech, in the course of which he expressed in most vivid terms the unanimous sentiments of the Flemish population.

Mr. Standaert made an allusion to the advances offered to the Flemish by the Imperial Chancellor in his recent speeches in the Reichstag, as well as to the "Flamandizing" of the Ghent University, a reform demanded by the Flemish for a long time previous to the present war, and to-day imposed by the occupant of Belgium, with the sole object of creating a division among the Belgians: "Let it well understood once and for ever, we claimed the deputy for Bruges, that we the Flemish, we reject with indignation, we scornfully kick back this coarse gift tendered by the foe, for we yet remember the Latin poet's "Timeo Danaos et dona ferentes."

"This language of Germany, its offers are an insult to the Flemish people, deemed vile enough to betray its honour, its country, silly enough to let itself be bribed by the promises of the bankrupt of honour."

"No Intelage for the Fleming! He is not a minor, he is old enough to defend himself alone and to stand for the settlement of his grievances. The Flemings are to-day as were the commoners of old:

"Die wilden wat was recht,
En wouwen wat se wilded."

(They wanted what was right and won what they willed.)

"Moreover the promises of Germany, its pledged word, its oaths, its signature, all that has for us nothing but the value of a "scrap of paper."

"The Flemings know only too well what are the crimes of Germany as regards the rights of race and of language of the Poles in Poland, of the Danes in Schleswig, of the French in Alsace-Lorraine, and would they go and trust such people?"

"I have seen with my own eyes, when I was on my mission in South-Africa, the pro-German Boers, on hearing of the atrocities committed in the Flanders, turn away horror-stricken from such barbarians and go, side by side with the Englishman, to fight against the German. And we, the victims of such horrors, we, the Belgians, the Flemings, we would run to meet our own executioners? The tombs of our martyrs would open, the remains of our soldiers fallen for their Fatherland would shudder, the ruins of Louvain, of Termonde, of Aerschot, of Ypres, would upbraid us if we did put our hand in the hands of these barbarians who have annihilated the glorious masterpieces of the Flemish art, who have tortured our old men, ravished our women, murdered our little children."

"Between the Flemish and Germany, there is henceforth a wall—the wall of barbarism. The German has crucified us in the flesh of our flesh, in the blood of our blood. And for generations to come, the mothers of Flanders will teach their children this prayer: "From the rage of the Teutons, deliver us, O, Lord!"

"From Liege to the Yser, Walloons and Flemish have by their own blood cemented and sanctified the soil of the Fatherland."

Weather Lore For Farmers

Infallible Signs That Foretell the Changes of Weather

Jerome K. Jerome's charwoman spoke words of wisdom when she recommended the farmer to "let the weather if he wanted a subject absolutely new."

The weather is always new and always furnishing material for news and startling headlines. It may be called the great record-breaking natural phenomenon.

How many winters go by that do not boast of the coldest night in twenty years? How many summers when the thermometer does not boil over its previous record which was achieved not less than forty years before? This season bases its pride on the greatest rainfall since Confederation.

The strongest wind on the Atlantic Coast since the "Saxby" gale blows every second year with the regularity of the equinox.

To the farmer, weather is second in importance to nothing, and even the soil. These things are co-equal in their effect upon success. In a bad season, the soil is fertile but indifferent financial returns, while in a good one the barrenness of a barren becomes only more apparent.

The relative climatic conditions of any farm in Canada are determined upon a number of things. The most important are: (1) Altitude, the higher the land the lower the mean average temperature. (2) Aspect: A southern aspect is warmer than a northern. (3) Exposure: A hillside well sheltered may be warmer than low land exposed. (4) Nearness to the sea: The nearer the farm is to the sea the less extreme is the temperature. (5) Prevailing winds: Bishop Brooks said that he felt the influence of the religion when the wind was easterly. The soil also loses its fertility when the cold, dry winds come during the growing season. (6) Humidity: A moist location tends to suffer less from night frosts than does a dry locality. (7) Color and texture of the soil: The darker the soil the more heat it absorbs from the sun and the better it retains it.

These points should all be considered in the selection of a farm site in its treatment while under cultivation. The farmer should take advantage quickly of any settled type of weather. The nature of the soil and how to forecast it are matters of paramount importance.

The prime cause of atmospheric disturbance is the unequal distribution of heat over the earth's surface. The higher the temperature of the air at any particular place, the greater its capacity for holding moisture. Any lowering of the temperature is followed by a condensation of the moisture which appears as clouds and eventually as rain. The condensation of rain from vapor suspended in the atmosphere is considered to be affected by the moisture in the air even at great elevations. This dust imparts to the sky its characteristic blue color.

Fog and mists are clouds close to the ground. Dew does not always come in the atmosphere and hence may be caused by evaporation of water from the ground.

Weather is closely related to wind, which in turn is related to pressure and temperature. The atmospheric pressure at the surface of the earth is about fifteen pounds per square inch. The barometer, however, reveals that this pressure is not constant, varies from time to time. This variation to a great extent, determines the weather.

In this latitude winds do not blow in a straight line, but in great spirals. Sometimes they blow outward from a centre of high pressure, sometimes inward to an area of low pressure.

When the barometric reading is high, the observer is in a high pressure area, and the centre of an outflowing spiral whirl. No wind blows here, or very little, for the reason that the movement of the air is downward from the dry regions far away from the earth.

When the barometric reading is low, the observer is in a low pressure area, and the centre of an inflowing spiral whirl. No wind blows here, or very little, for the reason that the movement of the air is downward from the dry regions far away from the earth.

A good barometer is essential. Two kinds are in use, the aneroid and the aneroid. The latter is the more delicate, differences of pressure being sometimes observed at a distance of only a few feet from the floor to a table. A cheap instrument is no better than the proverbial donkey's eye when it is used.

The meteorological department at Ottawa collects information from the entire continent concerning the movement of areas of different pressure. These are used to forecast future weather conditions with a fair degree of accuracy.

The following sky signs are very often of value: Rapidly-moving clouds are a sign of worse weather than slowly-moving ones.

Hard edged clouds are a sign of wind. The softer the clouds appear, the less wind may be expected, but perhaps more rain.

After a spell of fine weather the approach of wispy or feathery clouds followed by an overcast of mucky vapor is a sure sign of rain.

A rosy sky at sunset, whether clear or cloudy, indicates fine weather; a red sky at night in the morning bad weather.

A high dawn indicates wind; a low dawn fair weather. A high dawn where the sun appears above a bank of clouds, a low dawn where the streaks of light are very low down, a misty morning in summer is often followed by a fine warm day.

Remarkable clearness in the atmosphere near the horizon is a sign of rain or wind. So also is a good "hearing day."

How Wounded Canadians Are Cared For at the Front

The official Canadian casualty list now contains over 25,000 names. This constitutes a large army of wounded whose medical treatment devolves upon the Canadian Medical Service assisted by the Red Cross.

Our medical units are to be found in every part of the war zone. France, England, Belgium, the Mediterranean. In the latter district, Canada has supplied 430 beds and 264 medical officers, nurses and orderlies. The total personnel in all the field hospitals is not enough.

At the beginning of the war an attempt was made to place our wounded in the hospitals of the belligerent countries. This was found impossible, and a wounded Canadian may be found in any of the hospitals throughout Great Britain.

Each unit in the field, however, is assisted by the Canadian Red Cross, which when called upon by the Canadian Medical Corps, and the Canadian soldiers, is also sent to the front.

In his passage from the advanced dressing station to the field hospital, the Canadian soldier is attended by Canadian orderlies and orderlies. Sermon by Kaiser on Reliance of God

Practical Christianity and Harmony With Personality of Lord Needed

The speech which the German Emperor recently made to a gathering of the German people at his headquarters in the Vossische Zeitung by a chaplain in Berlin, "It is a time of sifting," said the Emperor.

"The world is separating the wheat from the chaff. Young men have the task of teaching the German nation to take things seriously everywhere except the present as it is. It is important to understand that life is a trial. We must live simply according to His acts and deeds."

"Gentlemen, how fascinating and marvellously manifold is His personality. We must study it thoroughly; we must live with the Lord."

"Suppose, gentlemen, that at this moment through yonder door, could we look into His face? Going to church, once we enter the church, we must make Him the ideal of our practical lives, we must determine to live according to His teaching. We must bring sharply before us the vision of God, who, perhaps, as the Almighty, is passing through the world. You must represent Him and show Him to us."

The emperor then dwelt on what he said he regarded as one of the most dangerous tendencies of the day, namely, the tendency to find fault, to complain, to criticize. "I often ponder how this tendency can be cured," he said. "Certainly not by repression, or laws or orders. The remedy cannot come from outside. It must come from within. There must be peace in our hearts; there must be strength for battle, and that must come from God's day."

The emperor who is now in the trenches will return home different men spiritually than when they left. Imperiousness, pride, and the desire to remain in the future the thoughts which will follow them.

Has a History El Arish, a Town the War Has Unearthed.

El Arish was one of the world's forgotten places until the British bombarded it a few days ago. With its large square fort and battlements of walls of stone presents a much more formidable and imposing appearance viewed from the desert to the south, than its importance warranted in recent years.

Formerly a populous halting place for the numerous caravans following the "short desert route" from Egypt to Syria its trade has waned materially since the completion of modern railway connection with Jaffa, Port Said and Alexandria.

The town clings to the banks of a stream which secures a small torrent after every rain. It is more than a hundred miles southwest of Jerusalem and a slight short distance from the Suez Canal, which lies to the west.

The recent hostilities in this area are reviving a host of historical associations dating as far back as the time of the Pharaohs when this town was a place of exile for political prisoners. Its ancient name was Rhinokura. Its present name is supposed to have come from the custom which obtained here of "cutting off" the noses of malefactors whose death sentence had been commuted.

Some thirty miles to the east of El Arish, on the Egyptian-Syrian boundary, lies ancient Rhapsania, now called El-Rafa, where Josephus said that the Roman conqueror Titus made his first stop on his march against Jerusalem.

Supplying Zinc to Great Britain

Possibilities of Zinc Production in British Columbia

London zinc merchants are preparing a scheme whereby Great Britain will purchase zinc from the area produced in Australia. The intention is to prevent Germany ever again getting control of the supply of zinc to Britain—a control she exercised until the outbreak of the war. Government assistance is being asked in order that the sum necessary to build the required smelting works in the United Kingdom may be secured. At least fifteen million dollars will be needed for the purpose.

As is well known, nearly all the zinc hitherto produced in Australia has gone to Germany. Over 400,000 tons of concentrates have been turned out in the Commonwealth each year from this 140,000 tons of spelter (refined zinc) has been extracted. What a supply will mean to Great Britain in the future and what the British market will mean to Australia can readily be imagined.

British Columbia has immense zinc deposits. If British capital could not be induced to interest itself in our product as well as in Australia's the mining industry of the province would be a tremendous impetus.—Vancouver World.

Conservation of Game

Canada Taking a Prominent Part in Protection of Wild Life

A report just issued by the Commission of Conservation, "Conservation of Fish, Birds and Game," directs attention to the great value of these resources to Canada. The volume is a report of the proceedings of a conference of the Committee on Fisheries, Game and Fur-Bearing Animals of the Commission, and contains a fund of information regarding the present condition and the necessity for protection of Canada's fish, birds and mammals.

Canada is taking a prominent part in the international movement for the protection of wild life. A Migratory Bird Treaty between Canada and the United States is under consideration. Through the influence of the Commission of Conservation and other interests, bird reservations are being created, where the birds may find safe nesting and breeding places. The fur-bearing animals of Northern and Western Canada are being rapidly exterminated. This is clearly shown by the present report. To secure their more adequate protection, the Commission is advocating the amendment of the Northwest Game Act to place more authority in its administration upon the Dominion Parks Branch, which already protects the animals in the Dominion National Parks.

The future of the fisheries of Canada is dealt with in another manner by the highest authorities in this country. That they are of great present value is a fact that there is also a potential value in our oceanic and inland waters which, upon development, would mean the creation of new industries. To meet this condition, the Commission is suggesting vocational training for the fishermen, that they may take advantage of the most practical and modern methods of their calling. The report is replete with illustrations applicable to the subject matter.

"Two Blades of Grass."

"And he gave it for his opinion that whoever could make two ears of corn, or two blades of grass grow upon a spot of ground where only one grew before, would deserve better of mankind, and do more essential service to his country, than the whole race of politicians put together." This from the great Irishman, Dean Swift. Attala, the present Kaiser—boasted that grass never grew on ground once trampled upon by his horse's hoofs. Here are two ideals, one to be encouraged, the other to be crushed. The Hun is again a large. While many of our countrymen are in Europe attempting to save the world from the ravages of his armies, those of us who are left behind can do no greater service to our country than to make the two ears of corn or the two blades of grass grow where but one grew before.—Montreal Family Herald.

How Japan Helped

Japanese Warships Guarded B.C. Coast in Early Days of War

Commander Denzo Mori, of the imperial Japanese navy, in an interview at Ottawa, talked enthusiastically of the war. The commander went through the Russo-Japanese war as a lieutenant and took part in the famous blockade of Port Arthur. There is no doubt in the mind of Commander Mori that the British navy achieved a great success in the Jutland battle, despite the claims of the Germans. "I have not exact information of the matter," he said, "but there is no question of a British victory, and a very important one, too. One of my friends, a member of the Japanese navy, left Japan at the same time as I did. He went to England and I went to the United States. He went down on the Queen Mary."

Speaking of the early days of the war, Commander Mori said that the Japanese battleships did much work of which we in Canada had not had the full story in guarding the coast of British Columbia and Australia when the German ships were still at large.

Much of the munitions now being used on the eastern front by the Russians was produced in Japan, said Commander Mori. Just as in Canada and England, new factories sprang up, so it had been in Japan, where the workers were turning out rifles, ammunition, guns and even battleships to aid the Allies.

"The Japanese people feel a great sympathy for Britain and Canada in this war," he added. "We all feel that the workers here, who have no doubt as to final victory, and earnestly hope that it will end very soon."

France Will Have Something to Say

Speculative construction of post bellum maps of Europe was a diversion in the course of the conflict the war than it has been in the first year. It was purely a future and visionary diversion, and surely is quite as much so now. At all events, it is a safe wager that the General Joffre's blood-soaked map, soaked, power-begrimed trench poles are distinctly of the opinion that they may have something to say themselves on the Alsace-Lorraine question when the time for settlement is at hand.—New York Sun.

Japanese Politician

Mr. C. E. Donohue, the brilliant war correspondent, who succeeded in wiring the fullest and quickest description of the Portuguese revolution by hiring a yacht and escaping from Lisbon to Vigo, was kept in Tokyo recently much longer than he wanted.

He was making a survey of the east, intending to reach the Russian front via Siberia, and had trouble in making the difficult journey.

He tells this story: A little Japanese policeman who had been watching me glanced furtively at a conversation handbook, and then crossed and spoke in English. "How do you do," he said, in careful tones. "Sir or madam, as the case may be?"

Animals Subject to Paralysis.

The attention which the present epidemic of infantile paralysis has drawn to the disease, and the discovery that domestic animals and pets are subject to paralytic disease. The animals which have especially come under suspicion as possibly distributors of the germs of infantile paralysis are poultry, pigs and dogs and cats. Sheep, cattle and even horses have been suspected. All these kinds of animals are subject to disease in which paralysis of the legs or other parts of the body sometimes appear. The paralytic diseases which they suffer have long been known and are quite different from infantile paralysis. Their occurrence may be coincidental; in no instance investigation has ever shown them to be responsible for the other.—Dr. Simon Flexner.

Huns vs. Hungarians

The German press views with some anxiety the anti-German campaign which has been opened by the Magyar or Hungarian press. The leader of the anti-German movement is Senator Rakosy, editor of the very powerful and influential "Hudapesti Hirlap" and a close friend of Count Tisza, the Hungarian Premier, who, in his paper, is conducting a violent campaign against the Germanization of Hungary. This the Hungarian censor refused to stop.

"Attack! we lack tactical fluid," said the German Chancellor. "We'll get milk from Canpes if I can break through the French line," said the Crown Prince. "Or I could send our navy over and get some from Cowes," put in Von Tirpitz's successor.

Work of Canadians

Volunteers From Canada Have Fought Like Veterans

The Canadian troops around Hill 60, Southern France, have not only repeated their valorous performance of St. Elloi, St. Julien and Arras. The official British statement describes their recapture of a former British position over a front of 1,500 yards to the southeast of Zillebeke as "a gallant and successful assault." They continued their advance until they had won back most of the ground around Ypres; they fought throughout the night, says the report, "doggedly bombing their way back to the possession of the position they had lost."

The soldiers of Canada have bulked big for a "colony" in this European war. When they first appeared upon the field they were a mystery to the trained British trooper; their apparent lack of discipline and carelessness in the face of danger, their slang and their disregard of the English traditions of the camp and field puzzled him. He still tells of a body of troops returning at night from the trenches that were being held by an English sentry. Receiving no reply, the sentry excitedly repeated, "Who comes there?" "None of your damned business," came from someone in the ranks. "All right, Canadians, advance!"

The Englishman, however, suspected the Canadians could fight, and he found it out in the engagements around Ypres. They were among the earliest sufferers from the gas which was a war weapon, when the German on the first day of its use made the terrible war. All the whole defensive in Flanders line after they held their line for days. The remnant of the "Princess Patricia's" was the last to be treated with gas, numbered but 100 when it was dug out of the trench it had defended.—New York Sun.

Francis Joseph Ordered Suicide of His Own Soldiers

According to a despatch received in Vienna, 1,000 Bohemian soldiers were sent to their death by the Austrian Emperor to expiate an offense committed by the Russians. The Emperor Francis Joseph signed the following decree: "The twenty-third Regiment is erased from my army. The remaining officers and men thereof must expiate with their blood the honor of their regiment. The remnant of the regiment, 1,000 Czechs, from Prague, of ages varying from 18 to 20, was sent to the front to fight against the Italian lines, under the orders to make a frontal attack upon an enemy position. The result was that the Italians annihilated the battalion, there being only eighteen survivors. On April 17, 1915 the Emperor reinstated the regiment 'for gallantry on the Isonzo,' the desertions in Galicia having been expiated."

Expecting Too Much

Defeat of Germany May Be a More Gradual Process Than Many Expect

We see much these days, in newspaper articles, that would lead us to believe that the Anglo-French strategy in this offensive movement does not aim so much at breaking through the German defence as at wearing out the German resistance by continuous pounding. On the basis of the year, the German toll of life is terribly great; but the allies are willing to sacrifice men so long as they exact enough from the enemy, knowing that they can stand the drain longer than he can. Before the end of the year, the Germans are not unlikely to be so embarrassed for want of reserves that they will decide to shorten the line and retreat in order to husband their strength for the shortening of their lines will of course increase their power of resistance. This course will make retirement necessary, and it may be that a good part of French and Belgian territory will be voluntarily evacuated by the enemy by the end of the year.—From the Hamilton Herald.

Off to Battle as if to a Picnic A platoon sergeant gives the following story: We had carried the first two lines and, on getting into the third, we saw the Germans coming up from the two exits of a deep dugout, and pairing off down the trench. Our platoon commander got into the trench and dugout on either side of him, saw four yards away. A German would rush out from No. 1 exit—over he went. Then one would come out from No. 2 exit, and over he went. Our officer was as cool as a cucumber—he simply turned from right to left and fired just as if he was in a shooting saloon. It was the best bit of fancy shooting I've seen—all prizes, no blanks. After we'd finished that bit of business—it was about 10 o'clock—we started again, and I got shot in the shoulder, but I saw our officer and the rest of the boys going forward as if they were off to a picnic.

Lachute, Que. 25th Sept. 1908. Minard's Liniment Co., Limited. Gentlemen, — Ever since coming home from the Boer War I have been bothered with running fever sores on my legs. I tried many salves and liniments; also doctored continuously for the blood, but got no permanent relief till last winter when my mother got me to try MINARD'S LINIMENT. The effect of which was almost magical. Two bottles completely cured me and I have been working every working day since. Your grateful son, JOHN WALSH.

"Of course you want to serve your country," said the patriotic citizen. "Yes," replied Senator Sargum. "But I want my constituents to have first helping, as far as possible." —Washington Star.

Kitchener as Prophet

Foretold Early Use of Battle Formation for Aeroplanes

A story told in London relates that at the very beginning of the war the late Lord Kitchener was visiting a certain flying ground in England, watching men fly and listening to what the officer commanding had to say. "You ought," said the Secretary for War suddenly, "to learn to fly in regular formation." The officer replied that that was impossible because machines could neither travel far enough nor stay long enough in the air.

"You will have to do it, all the same," Lord Kitchener said, "before this war is over." In the opinion of the officer the suggestion was absurd at that time, but it has come true. Both by the British and the French reconnaissance and observation work is now carried out in regular battle formation. Aerial warfare is, in fact, going through all the stages which warfare by sea went through, the development of three months being about equivalent to that of a century in the order service.

"Our Very Own Battalion"

The 187th Central Alberta Battalion, "The Veterans and Our Own," is making us understand a very fine record at Sarcee Camp. At several inspections, notably that made by General Hughes, it received very high praise indeed.

The quarters occupied by the 187th at Sarcee are at the extreme South East corner of the camp being located nearest the Bombing, Field Engineering, Bayonet fighting and other practical training schools. Consequently a visit to this section of Sarcee Camp and the 187th lines is well worth making by any one going to Calgary.

Every preparation is being made to get apparatus and equipment ready so that on return from harvest furlough the men will plunge into a period of developing and rigorous training.

Only a few more men are needed to bring this splendid battalion up to strength when it will be prepared to play its part in the great fight for freedom and liberty.

Every patriotic citizen of this district should busy himself by enlisting or assisting others to enlist in the final recruiting campaign now being launched.

Lieut.-Col. Robinson is very proud of the battalion under his command, and is confident that he has the finest body of men in Sarcee Camp. While officers and men are equally proud of their O.C., and quite confident that their commanding officer has no equal.

One thing is certain and that is that the 187th has a most remarkable record of freedom from crime and misconduct. There are few units in Canada whose company conduct sheets are so clean.

It was promised when the battalion was organized in May that places would be reserved for promotion from the ranks, and that promise is being kept, within the last few weeks Sergeants Starley, Forbes, Roughton and Standish have been given commissions in the 187th and are now Lieutenants in that unit.

We realize how fully occupied with training Col. Robinson, his officers and men are, that we would urge our readers to enlist, or get out as one man and boost for the remaining recruits necessary to bring up to full strength, "Our very own battalion."

New Peace River Pamphlet

The Department of the Interior, at Ottawa, has just issued through its Railway Lands Branch a very comprehensive pamphlet dealing with that new Mecca of the landseeker, the Peace River country.

While a few pioneer settlers have from time to time penetrated this portion of Northern Canada, it has only been within the past few years that it has been possible to regard the great Peace River Valley as within the reach of the home-seeker. The almost insurmountable difficulty in taking in supplies and machinery, and the corresponding lack of marketing the crop rendered this fertile area of Canada's hinterland a veritable "terra incognita."

While-as has been said-but few have explored this district, many will be surprised to learn that so long ago as 1876, grain from the Peace River captured the trophy in competition with the world at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia.

This publication deals with all the subjects which naturally suggests themselves to the average inquirer. Under the headings of Agriculture, Timber, Game, Minerals and Transportation the pamphlet gives a mass of information.

Climate and rainfall are also treated of. Numerous extracts are given from the reports of all well-known explorers and scientists who have visited the country, dating from the beginning of the last century, down to the present day. There is a consensus of opinion among these authorities as to the adaptability of the country to the growth of all grains and root crops. The great amount of sunshine which obtains in these northern latitudes renders vegetation growth both rapid and luxuriant.

In the Peace River district the seasons change very quickly so that as soon as the snow passes the ground is ready for seeding. The soil in some places, consists of a rich black loam. In others it varies from a blue clay to a top soil of sandy loam—from two to six inches deep. The soil is much desired by wheat growers.

Vegetables attain a large size. During a large part of the winter, masts, cattle and horses may remain outdoors.

It is a country adapted both to mixed farming and ranching.
This useful publication is being distributed free of charge by the Railway Lands Branch, Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

Tourists are Generous

That the tourists who are coming to Western Canada every summer in considerable numbers have their sympathies in the right place is indicated by a little voluntary collection taken up at the C.P.R. Chalet at Lake Louise a short time ago, on behalf of the Canadian Red Cross. As a result of this collection Manager Jones of the Chalet, has forwarded to the Calgary Branch of the Red Cross the sum of $75.00, which was much appreciated by the Red Cross as cash donations are greatly needed. The visitors who contributed to the collection represented many parts of the globe, but were mainly from the United States.

Mr. Smoker a Word Please

We are asked to start a Subscription list at our office for the purpose of raising funds to purchase tobacco for the Canadian soldiers at the front who are greatly in need of it.

The money will be sent to the Calgary Herald Tobacco Fund, and the names of those donating will be published in both The Chronicle and the Calgary Herald and a post card addressed to you is enclosed in every 25c package you subscribe for, which enables the happy soldier who receives your gift to write and thank you personally when he can do so.

More than 25,000 packages have already been sent through this fund but the work is only just beginning and more assistance is needed.

Just think of the pleasure it will be to some fellow in the trenches without the wherewithal to get a smoke, and no chance to buy it, and someone comes along and hands him a neat little packet of tobacco.

Subscription list at the Chronicle office. Come in and put down a quarter, you'll enjoy your next smoke better after doing it.
